

BALANCE POLAR ELECTROMAGNÉTICO

Electromagnetic Polar Balance is a technique developed by Francisco Rios and Pilar de Rios based on the laws of quantum physics to balance the electric and magnetic polarities in the organism and reestablish, in an integral form, the person's health in its many levels of manifestation. It is a non-invasive method, respectful of each person which searches the wellbeing of the individual in all aspects. It's used to face all kinds of problems.

The physical body, the emotions, the mind as well as the energetic body of the person make a unity. Those structures cannot work separately, there is need for a balance between them. Its loss of equilibrium is what produces diseases.

In the human being, as well as in other structures where energy circulates, there is a negative and a positive pole. Likewise we have an electric circuit that functions all the time. The dysfunction of this circuit produces health problems. The organism always functions with those two polarities which are complementary. As physics describes, any electrical energy that circulates creates an electromagnetic field just as in the human being. The electric circuit of the organism creates a magnetic field around us. This field permits ourselves to act upon the organism, because the electromagnetic field can take outside electrical charges, use it to transform, free and balance functions of the organism.

Polar Balance treatment uses colored slides. Those slides have a photoelectric effect, which means, the capacity to develop an electrical current from the incidence of light. Therefore, the slides also have a specific electromagnetic effect depending on its color. The slides form an interaction with the organism so as to trigger the necessary processes to return to a normal state. The organism absorbs the specific information provided by the slides and re-adapts, re-balances, re-organizes itself, so health is restored.
